British Values in Art at Bisley Blue Coat C of E Primary School

Rule of Law

In art, children are expected to follow rules in our classroom to ensure it is a safe place to be. They are able to distinguish between right and wrong and how these are valuable for ensuring a happy and thriving classroom environment.

Individual Liberty

Children are given opportunities to express their individuality and creativity through their art work, using a range of materials. They are able to make their own decisions and choices in art projects.

Democracy

In art, children discuss the work of famous artists and can vote on preferences, expressing their own views on the style and finished products. Children consider the views and values of their peers, especially when working collaboratively.

Tolerance of others with different faiths and beliefs

Children understand that people have differing views about art and that these make them who they are. They are taught to be tolerant to each others views and opinions, showing understanding to different faiths and beliefs. Children respect art work from faiths different to their own, including traditions and festivals.

Mutual Respect

Children are taught that art is a subject that people can have differing views and are encouraged to respect each other's views and opinions about art work. They are able to give constructive praise and areas for development about another child's work in a fair and kind way.
